

Financial Inclusion Policies and Innovative MSME Financing in the South Med – Hybrid Regional Dialogue Event

December 1 and 2, 2022 – NH Collection Brussels Centre, Belgium
CONCEPT NOTE AND AGENDA

MSME financing: stocktaking

The MED MSMEs Programme is a regional programme funded by the European Union operating in the South Med region¹. The MED MSMEs Programme looks at leveraging expertise, knowledge, and experiences at regional level and at fostering the regional sharing of expertise and experiences as well as peer learning (North-South) in the fields of SME Internationalization and MSME access to finance. The Programme applies a regional lens and focuses on the identification and dissemination of tools that can enhance MSME-driven sustainable growth at national level.

As regards access to finance, the Programme elaborated a series of knowledge products contributing to an informed peer-to-peer regional dialogue on policies and regulations supporting the development of innovative and alternative finance for MSMEs, a theme cutting across all national financial inclusion strategies implemented in the South Med countries. The Programme, notably, elaborated national roadmaps for developing innovative and alternative finance that were consolidated into one regional paper discussed with national working group members coordinated by the national Small Business Act Coordinators (SBACs).

The Programme also developed tools to assist non-banking financial institutions (NBFIs) 1) in mainstreaming the gender dimension in their operations, 2) in adopting digital solutions increasing outreach, facilitating risk management and generating cost efficiencies, and 3) in mobilizing concessional resources from development finance institutions, three tools that are drivers of financial inclusion.

On another stance, the Programme contributed to knowledge and experience sharing as regards innovative policies, regulations and technologies that foster the global transformation of the financial sector, notably as regards the EU Payment Service Directive 2, the regulatory sandbox and the mainstreaming of gender in the fintech sector.

Owing to the mass of knowledge produced and discussed thanks to the active participations of the Programme's partners, it was decided to organize a regional event over two days to allow policy makers, public and private practitioners and the Programme's experts to enter into a constructive and result-oriented dialogue.

This dialogue will be held in Brussels, Belgium, on December 1 and 2, 2022.

Policies and innovation

Despite efforts deployed on the demand- and supply-sides to bridge the access to finance gap - notably for MSMEs, the gap remains estimated in the South Med region at a staggering USD 97 billion, i.e. 17,42% of the countries GDPs on average (see table below).

In response, South Med countries have developed National Financial Inclusion Strategies that are implemented by a vast number of stakeholders under the coordination of regulators. Although the ultimate objectives of these strategies are the same, their implementation takes various forms depending on the specific context of a country, but also evolves in time in response to new challenges calling for greater resilience (e.g. climate change, Covid, inflation, political instability).

The event's DAY 1 will give the opportunity to take stock of various policy-, regulatory- and instrument-responses that have been adopted in the South Med countries. Those will be discussed with practitioners actively participating to the operationalization of the national strategies in view of identifying regional initiatives that could enhance impact at national level.

The last decade has also been characterized by the fact that innovation is profoundly reshaping the traditional financial landscape. The data-sharing regulations (e.g. the EU PSD2, on the principles of which the Programme issued a guide and supported dialogue) pave the way to Open Banking and create big data fostering new business models based on Application Programming Interfaces. The convergence of the telecom and financial sectors, the emergence of banks as business innovators (Banking 4.0), artificial intelligence and the tokenisation of assets - to name a few - are opening new horizons and raising high hopes as regards ease of access to finance, related cost reduction and improved risk management.

The answer to the question whether these technological advances will translate into greater financial inclusion remains a subject of study and dialogue. A consensus, however, exists as regards the need for regulators to preempt and accompany transitions. This calls for innovative policy, regulatory and support instrument responses, in the wake of the growing use of regulatory sandboxes in some of the South Med countries (on which the Programme produced detailed guidelines and supported dialogue).

This is in particular the case in the field of fintech, a sector that is developing fast, but that may inherit from the financial sector existing gender bias. Following a webinar organized in Jordan in 2020, the Programme developed a discussion paper that summarizes the findings of experts as regards the “Fintech in gender lens” assignment, that aims at informing upcoming policies and regulations by validating and promoting an action plan strengthening the advocacy capacities of women in FinTech.

The ongoing transformation of the access to finance scenery under the drive of technologies, will be the subject of the DAY 2 dialogue.

Objectives of the workshop

The objectives of the workshop are:

- 1- Peer-to-peer policy dialogue allows taking stock of the National Financial Inclusion Strategies and specific responses
- 2- New policies and regulations are inspired by the sharing of recent experiences
- 3- Awareness is raised on the tools developed by the MED MSMEs Programme
- 4- Awareness is raised on the latest developments as regards transformation driven by PSD2-like laws
- 5- Regulatory innovation (e.g., cross border sandbox) is discussed and inspires policy makers
- 6- Action plan for mainstreaming gender dimension in fintech polices is validated.

Participants

The event will gather up to 40 participants sponsored by the Programme; they will include representatives of Central banks, NBFIs and nonbanking financial associations, practitioners as well as women business associations and start-ups.

The event will be hybrid so as to allow a larger number of stakeholders to actively participate in the event, and notably working group members, EU Delegations and other EU-regional programmes in synergy with the MED MSMEs Programme activities.

The event will host panellists from different countries in the South MED region and Europe who will enrich the dialogue with their experiences.

Organisation of the seminar

The event will be held in Brussels, in a hybrid format over two days. The regional workshop will be organized at the NH Collection Hotel - Brussels Centre. The working language will be in English and French with simultaneous translation facilities.

The regional event will be articulated around two topics that will be tackled over the two days namely “Policies and tools for financial inclusion” and “Innovation for financial inclusion”.
